The Feast of Saint Peter and Saint Paul Armchair Catholics?

When we read of the saints who devoted their lives to spreading the gospel and of the martyrs who died for their beliefs we realise how much passion we lack. It's not as though there aren't any issues left for us to feel passionate about. We still have injustice, war, abortion, poverty, cruelty and neglect, but somehow we have become immune. The most involvement our Church will probably ever demand of us is to contribute to the summer fete (... not that there's anything wrong with contributing to summer fetes!)

Both Saint Peter and Saint Paul were larger than life men who were passionate about everything they did. Today we ask ourselves if we want simply to be armchair Catholics, or whether we want to follow their brave example.
